

Anthropology

Aurora Allshouse | Anthro 3636 | Spring 2023

I. Evaluation

What do TFs in anthropology need in order to be successful?
What needs are not currently being met?

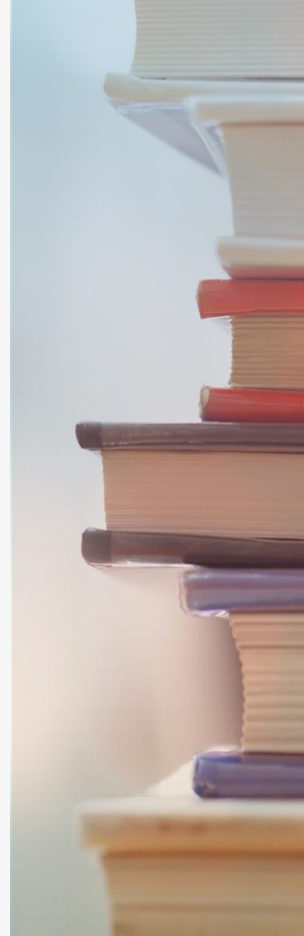

- TF survey at start of year
- Weekly office hours throughout
- Feedback from Pedagogy course

Needs identified by community:

Main points:

1. More clarity on TF roles and policies
2. Consistent access to previous course materials
3. Troubleshooting resources

<https://hu.sharepoint.com/sites/AnthroTFresources>

Resources for Anthropology TFs

Hello!

This page is the landing space for Teaching Fellows in the Anthropology department. Here you will find helpful links to tutorials, resource offices, and media to help you transition into your role as a TF. Use the quick links provided at the right to access frequently searched resources or browse through the site map below.

If you are an incoming/new TF, I recommend beginning by checking out the Bok Center's "Hit the Ground Running" module and the other quick links provided for general information about teaching.

This page is maintained by the Anthropology Department Pedagogy Fellow.

Aurora Allshouse (G6, Archaeology) | Afallshouse@g.harvard.edu | Office Hours: Tuesdays 4-5 pm (zoom) or by appointment

Quick links

-  Roombook
-  Course resource Archive
-  Pedagogy in Anthropology Course
-  "Hit the Ground Running" (canvas)
-  Anthropology TF Handbook (draft)

Browse archived course materials

Looking for section plans, slides, and other materials for a course? Check the course resource archive for materials and plans graciously donated by previous TFs.

Course resource archive

Get help with academic technologies

Having technical difficulties? Check out available tutorials, walkthroughs, and office hours for various teaching-related technologies like Canvas, zoom, the sectioning tool, and my.harvard.

Tutorials and troubleshooting

Develop teaching skills and pedagogical theory

Access resources provided by the department pedagogy fellow and the Bok Center to help you develop your skills as an instructor, learn how to craft impactful lessons, and deal with challenging moments in the classroom.

Bok Center Resources

Summary:

- Provides a permanent, living archive for course materials
- Collates Bok Center and Pedagogy course resources (handouts, modules, etc) in one easy-to-browse location
- Troubleshooting and technology self-help available as needed
- Lots of potential for future PF to add/change as the needs of community change

